Field lights will increase noise for neighbors

A letter in Friday's IJ noted Brendan Fogarty's Sept. 7 letter, citing the impact of the proposed field lights at Marin Catholic High School on area wildlife, including the salt marsh harvest mouse, while ignoring many recent letters from residents regarding the impact of nightly noise 514 times a year (according to Marin Catholic's own figures) on human beings.

We, who live in the vicinity of Marin Catholic, are all too familiar with daytime noise, at times very high decibel, generated from activities on the field.

Nighttime use would invade our homes, eliminating the few hours of conversation, low-key entertainment and peaceful quiet we now enjoy.
